MEMORANDUM

DATE: July 25, 1991
FROM: Kenneth Schachter, MD, MBA
Chief, Office of Clinical Management
SUBJECT: DATA GATHERING FOR PROPOSED DEMONSTRATION PROJECT WITH
THE AMERICAN ACADEMY OF OPHTHALMOLOGY
TO: Claude L. Cowan, Jr., MD
Chairman, Indigent Care Committee
American Academy of Ophthalmology

Earlier this year, Ms. Beverly Zimmerman, South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control, administered a "M/CHC Eye Care Services Needs Assessment" survey (see enclosure) to migrant and community health centers in that state. As a result, we have obtained data on the incidence of diabetes and hypertension, and on the availability of eye care services for most federally funded migrant and community health centers in South Carolina. I believe that the reported incidence of these two diseases is similar at migrant and community health centers in other Region IV states. (For example an urban Atlanta community health center recently reported that 10% of its adult users were diabetic.) The pooled data for eight of ten responding centers revealed a total of 62,742 users, 42,517 black users (68%), 5,890 diabetic users (9%), and 12,998 hypertensive users (21%). Between individual centers the incidence of diabetes varied from 5% to 15%, and the incidence of hypertension varied from 9% to 31%.

Review of the National Center for Health Statistics' October 1990 publication, VITAL AND HEALTH STATISTICS, "Current Estimates from the National Health Interview Survey, 1989," shows a 2.7% incidence of diabetes among respondents of all races, ages, and family incomes; a 3.6% incidence among blacks of all ages and family incomes; and a 4% incidence among all races (and blacks) with incomes less than $20,000. It also shows a 12% incidence of hypertension among respondents of all races, ages, and family incomes; a 15% incidence among blacks of all ages and family incomes; and a 16% incidence among blacks with incomes less than $20,000. This illustrates that federally funded migrant and community health centers typically care for a population at higher than average risk.

Data Gathering for Proposed Demonstration Project with the American Academy of Ophthalmology

Unfortunately, centers were not able to provide data on the incidence of common eye diseases/problems (e.g., glaucoma, cataracts, blindness) among their users. I attribute this to several causes - their lack of access to eye care services, their lack of sophisticated clinical management information systems, and the informal nature of our request.

Review of the VITAL AND HEALTH STATISTICS, shows a 0.2% incidence of bilateral blindness, a 3.3% incidence of other visual impairments, a 2.3% incidence of cataracts, and a 0.8% incidence of glaucoma among respondents of all ages, races, and family incomes.

When questioned about the availability of eye care services; one urban center reported that ophthalmology services were available on-site and optometry services off-site, seven centers reported that both ophthalmology and optometry services were available off-site, and two rural centers reported that neither ophthalmology nor optometry services were available on-site or off-site. In the eight centers reporting that eye care services were available; one center reported that emergency care, and another that high risk screening exams and visual acuity testing were not available to their users. Two centers noted access problems; one that it was having difficulty obtaining needed eye care services for indigent patients, another that the nearest ophthalmologist was located thirty miles away. Since the questionnaire did not specifically ask centers to comment on access (e.g., distance or financial) issues; it is likely that they were under-reported.

I've also enclosed estimates of how far away our "nearest" migrant and community health centers are from Ophthalmology Residency Programs.

I hope this information will assist your committee and the American Academy of Ophthalmology in the development of a demonstration project with the Bureau of Health Care Delivery and Assistance. As we have discussed, we at Region IV are eager to work with you on this project in order to enhance the availability and accessibility of quality eye care services at federally funded centers. I look forward to talking (and working) with you in the future.
